About the Application and Program

Day Internships

Applicants are encouraged to secure internships in line with his or her career goals as early as possible, as most competitive internships are usually filled in the fall or early spring. It is the applicant's responsibility to secure a day internship. If you would like further guidance on MPSN's internship criteria, please contact MPSN.

Internship Hours – Interns are expected to work 32 to 40 hours per week on weekdays. MPSN workshops and classes are held weeknights and weekends, and therefore interns are to clear their schedule by 6pm on weeknights and all day Saturday and Sunday. If exceptions are needed, complete the "Attendance" section of the application. Internship dates must coincide with the duration of the MPSN program.

Acceptable Internships – Internships must be public service and civic engagement related. Some examples of acceptable internships are with congressional offices, journalism/media, think tanks, federal agencies, judicial internships, and non-profit advocacy organizations.

Internships with foreign embassies, Muslim organizations, or ethnic organizations with predominantly Muslim populations do not qualify as acceptable internships for MPSN.

Program Fees & Financial Aid

The MPSN program fees for participants are as follows:

- Interns – $1,500 (payable in two installments of $750)
- Externs – $700 (payable in two installments of $350)

The first installment of the program fee is due May 15, 2010 and the second by July 1, 2010

In order to assist interns in need of financial assistance, MPSN has established a financial aid program separate from the admissions process. The financial aid application is available on the MPSN website.

Medical Information

MPSN requires you to carry your own health insurance. MPSN does not provide any insurance or any other type of coverage. If accepted, you will be asked to provide proof of medical insurance and complete a medical information form.

Strengthening Your Application

Apply On Time

- Apply early for internships and MPSN. Apply to internships while you are in the application process of MPSN. Do not wait for an MPSN decision to start your internship search.
- Applications will not be reviewed until all mandatory reference letters are on file. The Admissions Committee is not responsible for following up with your references about their letters; it is your responsibility.

Be Thorough

- Submit a complete application. All sections of the application are mandatory and incomplete applications will delay the admission process.
- Proofread all segments of your application. Grammatical errors, as well as poorly written essays weaken your application.

Follow the Outlined Process

- Staff or alumni are welcome to submit recommendations and letters of support; however, any connections to staff/alumni do not by themselves increase your chance of admission.
- Informal communications of support from MPSN alumni/staff to the Admissions Committee will not be considered during the evaluation of the application.

Share Your Strengths

- The interview is your chance to help the Admissions Committee get to know you better. It is an opportunity to highlight your strengths and unique factors that would be an asset to MPSN and your classmates.
- Take a moment before answering questions to compose your thoughts.

Email admissions@muslimpublicservice.org if you have any questions about the application process.
